Christian Burial

A Christian burial service is a difficult yet reverent mix of sadness and joy. We acknowledge the pain of loss and grief, but we are confident in the promise of God that “neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Rom 8:38-39). Consequently, the liturgy for the dead is properly an Easter liturgy: it finds all its meaning in the resurrection. Because Jesus was raised from the dead, we too shall be raised.

Such joy, however, does not make grief unchristian. Quite the contrary, our grief is an expression of our love. The very love we have for each other in Christ brings deep sorrow when we are parted by death. Jesus himself wept at the grave of his friend (John 11:35). So, while we rejoice that one we love has entered into the nearer presence of our Lord, we sorrow in sympathy with those who mourn.

At the time of death, people turn to the church for rituals which allow them to recognize their loss, express their grief, remember and give thanks for the life of the one who has died, mark the end of relationships which exist in this life, allow them to seek strength and comfort in their faith, and provide dignity and meaning to the end of life. The rites of the church are appropriate at several junctures in the passage from life into death. Long before death is a reality, the church can help people plan for the funeral and address other issues and concerns. Near the point of death, the church can be present in ministry to the dying person and his or her family and friends. After death, there is the funeral service and committal of the body to a final resting place.

At Saint Michael, our clergy, staff, and lay volunteers will do all that we can to provide a fitting and meaning-filled funeral for your loved one. We recognize that, upon the death of one we love, there are many arrangements to be made and concerns to be settled. Therefore, we strive to make your experience here as easy and well-supported as possible.

At the Time of Death

Please call 214-363-5471 to report a death. If you call after business hours you will be directed to press 1 for the Priest on Call, who is available 24 hours a day, and is the most direct way to receive pastoral care at the time of death. The Priest on Call will make preliminary arrangements and contact the staff. The Worship & Liturgy Department will assist you with planning your loved one's service.

About the Service

The principal purpose of a burial service is to offer thanks to God for the life of the deceased, and to commend the deceased and those who mourn to the mercy and care of God. Thus, burial services are chiefly acts of worship, and as such are part of the wider worship and life of the congregation. The Book of Common Prayer assumes the remains will be present for the service (either casket or urn), but a memorial service (without casket or urn) is also possible.

The Pall

The Book of Common Prayer prescribes that the coffin or urn be covered with a pall (an embroidered cloth provided by Saint Michael) during the service. The use of the pall symbolizes a great truth at the heart of the church's ministry: that we are all equal in God's sight. Over the years, a pall has covered the remains of the celebrated and the unknown, each of whom is loved by God. If flowers or a flag is covering the casket when it arrives in the narthex, the Altar Guild respectfully removes the covering for the service.

Flowers

After the time of the service has been set, the Flower Guild Chair will contact the family to discuss floral options and vendors for the altar flowers. No extra adornment of flowers, pictures, or mementoes are allowed in the narthex or any worship space; they may be placed in the space reserved for the reception. If the family wishes the altar to be bare with no flowers at all, that is also an option. Funeral flowers remain in the church after the service.

Music

Music makes a significant contribution to the richness and meaning of any service. An organist will be assigned to the service by the Music Department, and additional musicians (vocalists or instrumentalists) may be recruited as needed. All music offered during burial services must be sacred music (i.e., written for Christian worship), and should be from any of three hymnals approved for use in the Episcopal Church (i.e., The Hymnal 1982, Wonder, Love, and Praise, and/or Lift Every Voice and Sing II). Listed later in this document are suitable hymns that are especially appropriate for burials.

Scripture

Burial services generally include three principal readings from the Bible: one from the Old Testament, one from the Epistles, and one from the Gospels. A reading from the Psalms may follow either the first and/or second reading(s), and these may be read by a lector or said by the congregation. A member of the family or friend of the deceased may be appointed to read any or all of the lessons except the Gospel. Selections or readings from sources other than the Bible are discouraged. Listed later in this document are suitable readings that are especially appropriate for burials.

Homily

Following the reading of the Gospel lesson, a homily (a brief sermon) is preached by one of the officiating clergy. The homily grows both out of the lessons chosen for the service and the life of the deceased. In the service, we come together before God with our grief, our questions, our hopes, and our most valued feelings as Christians. Thus, to bring together the life of the deceased with the hope of the church, it is especially important for family members and friends to share with the officiating clergy those aspects of the deceased's life that reflected the image of God in the world and for which family and friends give thanks.

A brief reflection (no longer than five minutes) may be offered by a pre-arranged family member or friend. The best reflections are written in advance and help those gathered to remember the best character qualities of the deceased—the ways in which the person helped family and friends see God's love and grace.

Guest Clergy

A member of the clergy who was particularly well known to the deceased and/or the family may be invited to participate in the service. However, all such invitations require the permission of the Worship & Liturgy Department, and may require the permission of the Bishop. Families are encouraged not to issue any invitations to clergy not serving at Saint Michael until they have consulted with the Worship & Liturgy Department.

Attending the Family

Approximately 30 to 45 minutes prior to the service, family and close friends are asked to gather in the Parlor. After being greeted by the officiating clergy, they will be conducted to the front seats of the sanctuary by the officiating clergy or a verger. At the conclusion of the service, family and friends are escorted out, in advance of the congregation's departure. On occasion, a family may choose to process down the middle aisle behind the casket or cremains.
